We Welcome Your New General Manager

Dear Member,

We are excited to welcome James “Keith” Brooks to Douglas Electric Cooperative as the new general manager. Keith has 25 years of experience in the utility industry, most recently as the assistant general manager for Kootenai Electric Cooperative in Hayden, Idaho. In addition to leading the Member Services, IT and Field Engineering departments, his responsibilities included member and information services, cybersecurity and the development of Kootenai’s leading edge outage management system. Prior to joining Kootenai in 1996, Keith was operations manager for the largest, most successful contract meter reading company in the Pacific Northwest.

A nationwide search was conducted, generating 42 applicants. Keith was selected for his diverse background, proven leadership, communications skills and wide range of experience. Keith will assume his duties as the new general manager on January 2.

“A number of things excited me about this opportunity, including the fact that my wife, Vickie, is a native of Riddle. In addition to the location, I am comfortable with the size of the co-op and look forward to adding value to the membership.”

Keith met Vickie while they were both serving in the Air Force. While son Nathan, a recent graduate of Eastern Washington University, remains up north, Vickie is looking forward to the homecoming as both parents still live here locally.

Speaking of homecomings, I look back over my few months here with great satisfaction. It has been a pleasure helping the board through this process. I am confident the amazing management and staff will make the new general manager feel just as welcome as I felt when I arrived in June. Thank you to all.

Best Regards,

Werner Buehler
